Right Angles announces new appointment to sales team

Right Angles has announced the new appointment of Rachel Moran into its sales team.

Right Angles has seen a significant increase in enquiry levels and distributor sales since November 2009. This increase in activity has resulted in the opening of a new role in our sales team.

Rachel joins Right Angles from a design and build specialists for concrete storage tanks. She brings with her a wealth of construction and sales experience and will be responsible for the continuing sales of Right Angles to national and international markets worldwide.

Rachel comments; "I am delighted to be part of the Right Angles team and look forward to the role of taking Right Angles to the global market."

Commenting on the appointment Andy Bald, Managing Director of Right Angles, said;

"I am delighted that Rachel has chosen to join Right Angles. She brings with her an excellent background in construction and has an outstanding reputation and remarkable contact network.

"Our market place is growing significantly and requires the highest level of professionalism and innovation to stay one step ahead. She is very well connected within the industry and will be an asset to us."

Right Angles features and Benefits

Right Angles is a formwork system that allows the easy and fast build of all 90° corner shapes. It gives clean and neat chamfers for reinforced concrete structures, while ensuring consistent, quality results.

This brand new innovative concrete corner kit reduces waste and uncertainty when pouring concrete. Recent UK trials have shown more than 70% in time saving compared to traditional methods.
